

Results: There was no significant difference in microleakage between the four groups although the air abrasion and acid etching exhibited the least microleakage followed by enameloplasty and acid etching then the self etching adhesive system, and the highest microleakage was pumice and acid etching